In the attention of the land until full and and appraisement laws, and t to the model Itself, this is a very neat affair, instance, and sixty-six in number, representing the thirty-nine of the Old Testament, from Genesis to Malachl; and the twenty seven of the New Testament, from Matthew to Revelation. They are half-bound, with smooth fancy calf backs, variously colored—so as to distinguish their several departments Thus, the five books of The Law are in green, the twelve historical Books in crimera, the five poetical books in orange, the seventeen Prophetical Books in grey, sprinkled with red, the four Gospels in blue, the Acts of the Apostles in pink, the Epist es in brown, and the Goods which he has just received from the Eastern Cites. His Stock has been purchase Apocalypse in purple. Each volume has two labels on the back—the upper one giving the name of the Book, the lower the name of the Author and the Date. The volumes are regularly numbered, also, from I to 65. The single plate of clear glass in the door allows all the inscriptions, with the books arranged under them, to be seen at a glance—so that the the inscriptions, with the books arranged under them, to be seen at a glance—so that the whole design is obvious and impressive. It may be well to add, that though mere models, each of the volumes contains a printed copy of the book whose name it bears, taken from Bagster's Treasnry Bible. The remainder of each volume is blank paper.

In the new edition, now proposed, the Sacred Text, being in fair, open type, will fill about half of each volume. The other half is intended to be occupied by the Appendix and Student's Memoran ium.

These Mills do not require a Millwright to set them up, and all that is necessary to put them in opreation is to attach a band to the pulley on the spindle, with a prum sumblently large to run the 24 luch Mill 240 revolutions per minute; attachep to horse, ateum or water power. By the steady application of twohorse power, the Mill will grind 6 to 8 bushels per hour of good meal, and will grind wheat as well as Corn. The 30 inch Mill, if put to its fullest speed, will grind from 10 to 15 bushels per hour.

These Millsare warranted to be in every respect as recommended.
